

FIND CAR DRIVER GUILTY, 2 COUNTS; PUT ON PROBATION

Christian A. Houseman, Philadelphia, Has Prison Sentence Suspended

PASSENGER WAS KILLED

Car Crashed Into Tree At Washington Crossing, Near River Bridge

DOYLESTOWN, May 26.—Deliberating but a short time a jury in Court Room No. 2 convicted Christian A. Houseman, of Philadelphia, charged with involuntary manslaughter following the death of Christine Peters, of Philadelphia, who was a passenger in the defendant's car on April 29 as they were riding through Washington Crossing, Bucks county.

Houseman was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for a period of one year.

Houseman was arrested by Corporal R. D. Evans, of the South Langhorne sub-station of State Highway Patrol, following an investigation of the accident. Houseman was badly injured in the crash and Christine Peters, who was a passenger in the back seat of his car and who was fatally injured, died in a Trenton Hospital following the accident.

Corporal Evans testified that when he arrived at Washington Crossing he found that the accident took place at the intersection of the Newtown Road and the River Road near the Delaware River bridge. He found that the Houseman car had crashed into a tree along the side of the highway and that another car driven by Miss Bessie Matthews, of Philadelphia, and the Houseman car had sideswiped when Houseman continued on through a "stop sign," causing the Houseman car to crash into a tree.

Corporal Evans further testified that on May 3rd, Houseman was released from a Trenton hospital and at that time he asked him how the accident happened.

"Houseman told me that he had been through Washington Crossing before and at the particular place where this crash occurred there had once been a warning light," Corporal Evans testified. "I told Houseman that the light had not been there for some time and that a stop sign had replaced this light. He told me that he was driving north on Route No. 32, and that he did not remember whether he saw the stop sign or not. He told me that Christine Peters was a passenger in the rear seat and that Jeanette Peters was a passenger in the front seat with him."

Corporal Evans also testified that he explained to Houseman that there was a "slow down" sign some distance from the intersection before reaching the "stop sign."

Miss Matthews, the first witness called in the case by Assistant District Attorney Edward G. Blasier for the Commonwealth, testified that she saw the Houseman car proceed through the intersection without first stopping at the "stop sign." She said that she sounded the horn on her car as she was headed toward the Delaware River bridge.

Dr. H. H. Hawke, of the Mercer Hospital, Trenton, testified as to the injuries that caused the death of Christine Peters.

The defendant, Houseman, was represented in the trial by Henry A. James, of Doylestown.

Judge Keller this morning directed that two of four bills of indictment against Mary E. Keifer, of Milford, N. J., be quashed. The case went to trial on charges of failure to file reports required of gasoline dealers. Counts of failure to pay dealers' tax were quashed.

Investigator William Weamer, of the State Department of Revenue, testified that Mrs. Keifer at one time conducted a general store and gasoline tank business at Revere. He stated that records of the Department of Revenue show that certain 1931 reports of sales were not filed in Harrisburg by the defendant.

At this point Mrs. Keifer withdrew her plea of not guilty and her attorney, Webster Grim, of Doylestown, entered a plea of nolle-contendere.

Mrs. Keifer testified that she failed

HULMEVILLE

A 25-foot cabin cruiser has been purchased by the Hulmeville Boys' Club, the craft formerly being that for use of the harbor master at Bristol. This club, which meets at Grace Church club house, plans to place the cruiser in the lower part of the Neshaminy Creek, so that it might be used both on the Neshaminy and the Delaware River. The boat will accommodate about 26 people, and the young men plan for many outings.

The Hart family, of Oxford Valley, will move into the house recently vacated by the Michael family, McKinley street.

The county examinations for the eighth grade of Hulmeville public school are scheduled for June 12th and 13th. There will be no commencement exercises this year.

POLICE BREAK UP RIOT

Wilkes-Barre, May 26.—A detail of 18 mounted state police resorting to tear gas and clubs drove nearly a thousand men, women and children from the vicinity of the West End Coal Company operations at Mocanqua.

Detailed to the scene at daybreak, the troopers found nearly the entire town out in protest against the practices of the company in working strippers and a culm bank with foremen and other officials, while the regular men working at the Mocanqua mine itself are idle. Witnesses said the troopers drove their horses into the crowd and used clubs freely. One mounted officer snatched up an American flag around which a group had rallied. Several women fainted and others were reported to have been injured slightly.

URGE OUSTING OF WOODIN

Washington, D. C., May 26.—Congressional demands for the resignation of William H. Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury, roared across Capitol Hill today as word spread he would be named as a "favored client" of J. P. Morgan & Company on five different lists of "cut-rate" securities.

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee has revealed Woodin as one of the Morgan "friends" given an opportunity to buy Allegheny Corporation and Standard bank stocks at special prices below the market value.

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee have proof he also bought three other stock issues handled by the House of Morgan at similarly preferred prices. The drive to oust Woodin was non-partisan. It was led by Senator Borah, Republican of Idaho, and Senator Wheeler, Democrat of Montana. Wheeler was an eloquent supporter of President Roosevelt in the 1932 campaign. Both Senators—as did many other independent leaders—declared Woodin's usefulness was ended by the revelation of the favor extended him by the House of Morgan. Three more lists of "favored clients" of Morgan were to be made public. These dealt with the sale of stocks of General Motors; and the Johns-Manville Corporation.

Fresh sensations were expected as the committee revealed the names of more prominent persons given cut-rate prices by the great Morgan firm. There was great interest too with the indication of a further inquiry into the Morgan & Company international financial operations. The firm already has revealed the handling of $328,000,000 in loans to the British, Italian, Japanese and Spanish governments between 1927 and 1931. It received a $578,379 commission on a British loan of $200,000,000 and split $1,478,666 in commission with numerous American banks on other loans.

CHAS. BOEHM TO SPEAK

FALLSINGTON, May 26.—Eighteen are to receive diplomas at the first annual commencement of Falls Township Junior-Senior high school in the Fallsington community house here tonight.

Featuring the exercises here tonight will be a William Penn pageant, depicting episodes in the life of Penn while he was a resident of Falls Township. Members of the graduating class will participate, assisted by several undergraduates. The first part of the program will consist of individual numbers by the seniors, including recitations and musical numbers. The school orchestra will render several selections.

Bristol A. A. Drops Another Game, Hulmeville Being Winner

I. O. O. F. ALSO WINS TILT

LOWER BUCKS COUNTY LEAGUE
Schedule for tonight
HULMEVILLE at A. O. H. (Sullivan's field)
BRISTOL A. A. at ODD FELLOWS (Emilie field)

Parkland A. A. and the Langhorne Giants were handed their first defeats of the Lower Bucks County League last night. In the other fray, Bristol A. A. dropped another.

On Sullivan's field, the Hibernians worked the squeeze play in the sixth inning to score the tally which beat Parkland, 5-4. Last week Parkland worked the same play to beat Bristol A. A.

To open the last frame, "Fatty" Lycaak tripled to left. McGinley bunted and a play was made for Lycaak at the plate but the umpire ruled the base runner safe, winning the game for the Bristol team and placing them in a deadlock with the Langhorne Giants for first place. A win for the "Hibs" tonight will put them in the top notch position in the league.

"Gize" Dougherty continued his heavy hitting for the Big Green by crashing a home run to right in the second inning. For the second time this week, Hines was the losing hurler.

EMILIE, May 26.—The Odd Fellows upset the dope in the Lower Bucks League here last night, trouncing the Langhorne Giants, 7-1, in a one-sided battle.

The "Oddies" went right at them the first inning and scored five times before the colored team could get set. The lead was a good margin and set the Bristol team off to victory. Four hits sang off the Odd Fellows' bats in this first inning and three more in the fifth added two more runs.

Eise's double and a single by Harris scored Langhorne's run.

"UNCLE BOB" TELLS TOTS OF HIS CIRCUS DAYS

Recounts to Pupils Here How He Joined Circus; Tells of Klub

PLIED WITH QUESTIONS

"Uncle Bob" Sherwood, circus hero to thousands upon thousands of children, made an auspicious entrance in a most unassuming manner at public schools here, yesterday, and as a result is more firmly enshrined in the hearts of kiddies of Bristol.

The appearance of "Uncle Bob" was eagerly awaited at the high school building, and when he did arrive he made his way up the auditorium aisle, with a little boy firmly clasping either hand. Frequently he halted in his progression to the front of the room, placing a little girl upon the cheek, patting his friendly hand on the head of a little boy, and beaming at the tots on all sides.

A most picturesque figure, "Uncle Bob" belies his 77 years. He appeared most jaunty yesterday in a light linen colored suit, and his flowing black tie accentuated the whiteness of his thick hair. Most erect is the radio and circus hero, who has kept young with the youngsters, and is never more pleased than when he can mingle with the little folks and tell them tales of the circus.

"He floats with the greatest of ease. This daring young man on the flying trapeze; His movements are graceful, All girls he does please; And my love he's purloined away."

Thus did he sing as he commenced his short talk to the tots at the high school building yesterday, and soon had the entire school lustily singing the clown songs. More songs followed, all flavoring of the saw-dust ring.

With a few swift steps "Uncle Bob" was at the side of a pretty, little, curly-haired girl and picking her up in his arms he marched to the front of the room and implanted a kiss on her cheeks. "I always kiss the best-looking little girl I see," he said amid gales of laughter.

Then followed the story of how he joined the circus. The tots heard how the well-known performer became tired of "chamber-maiding" for horses and cows on a big farm. "I was sent to town to sell cherries to the circus men, and I made a bargain to sell about three gallons for a 'shin-plaster' and the privilege of going into the show." When asked by one of the circus-folks how he would like to join the show the lad, then nine years old, quickly assented, and "that night I rode out of town wrapped in a piece of canvas on top of a lion's cage. Being No. 13 in a poor but respectable family I wasn't even missed," he added. That was the start of a pilgrimage that has led the famed clown all over the world.

When asked for an elephant story by the tots he remarked "A big one! Well, it's got to be a big story, if it's a big elephant." He proceeded to tell of how when the telephone was first invented he had much fun pretending the elephant's trunk was a telephone. "I would talk, laugh, sing and whistle into one elephant's trunk, and then he would put the end of his tail in my ear so I could hear what I said at the front." Years after, the children were told, that elephant recognized "Uncle Bob" when he visited the circus, and when the clown tried the stunt again the elephant placed its tail-tip in his ear. "It's true that elephants remember, they remember both good and bad deeds."

For four years "Uncle Bob" was with the Dan Rice Circus, two years

Legion Awards Presented On Behalf of Bracken Post

BRISTOL TWP. PUPILS

68 Receive Diplomas at M. E. Church; A. Rutter Speaks

Recipients of the American Legion School Award medals presented by Robert W. Bracken Post, 382, last evening, on the occasion of commencement exercises of Bristol Township public schools, were Mary P. Brambley, and Wilson Hovatter.

The presentations were made by Arthur Zug, a member of Bracken Post, who highly complimented the two students named on their being chosen for the award. The girl's medal and miniature of same as a pin, are given for courage, character, service, companionship and scholarship; while that of the boy is for honor, courage, scholarship, leadership and service. The two were chosen from the list of 68 who last evening received certificates of promotion to high school.

It was announced by the supervising principal, W. J. Kines, who presented the diplomas, that this class finished with the highest average since he has been connected with the township schools. The class scholastic average was 81%. The valedictorian, Miss Mary P. Brambley, secured an average for the last year of 91%. In the valedictory Miss Brambley told of the class now being prepared to take the second great step in their young lives, that of entering high school, and continued by telling of the desire of all for further knowledge.

The speaker of the evening was Professor Albert Rutter, an assistant county superintendent of public schools. "Tonight you are young kings and young queens," he told the class members. He complimented the group on so successfully coping with the last set of county examinations for eighth grades, and added "You did a valiant piece of work, you fought a good fight, you ran a good race." He pleased with an account of a recent trip taken by him to the Rocky Mountains, and in conclusion urged the students to continued effort in scholastic attainments.

A nine-piece orchestra, composed of boys from the third to the ninth grades, provided in splendid style a number of compositions.

The Rev. Clarence Howell offered prayer and pronounced the benediction. Other numbers on the program, which was listened to by a large company of relatives and friends of the graduates, included: Welcome, Eugene Terance Finney; "The Joy of Living," octette; piano solo, Mary M. GOVERNMENT FINANCES

Some encouraging features are to be found in the latest review of the Federal Government's finances. One of these is that the receipts are above those of a year ago. This is the first time since 1930 that this has occurred.

The margin is very small. From July 1, 1932, to May 11, 1933, receipts were $1,716,238,281, representing a gain of $159,542 as compared with the same period a year earlier.

The beer taxes and increases in miscellaneous items under the 1932 revenue act were responsible for the change in trend. Receipts from beer are expected to amount to about $12,000,000 a month. The beer taxes helped to bring the collections for the first 11 days of May to more than $12,500,000 above those for the first 11 days of the preceding month.

Despite the higher income tax rates, the revenue from this source continues to show a sharp decline. From July 1, 1932, to May 11, this year, income tax receipts amounted to $588,499,563, which was a decline of $890,951,175. Customs receipts, likewise, continued downward.

MILLIONS WILL SCORE

Man has been looking too long at men—and at the earth. He no longer looks up to the ancient lights in the heavens with the reverence of his early ancestors.

The Century of Progress exposition soon to open in Chicago is man's way of celebrating his conquests over nature and in science, mechanics, industry and commerce. But he will be jubilant with his eyes on the heavens.

Light which left the star Arcturus 40 years ago will be captured by a photo-electric cell and used to open the exposition. That ray of light left the distant world of its origin when the World's Columbian Exposition opened in Chicago 40 years ago.

At the appointed hour radio messages will instruct astronomers at four different observatories to catch some of the light from the distant sun-star in their giant telescopes and train it upon photo-electric cells. As the ray strikes the cells it will close electric circuits which will send an electric force over wires to light lamps on a huge map in Chicago and to light a huge searchlight. As the beam of the searchlight sweeps the exposition grounds and buildings it will strike other photoelectric plates and provide the energy for throwing the switches illuminating the grounds and buildings.

Man has learned much from watching the stars, much more than millions know or dare believe. Millions in enlightened America will be skeptical of Arcturus' part in the inaugurating of the Century of Progress.

Immaturity is the one big thing modern young people must overcome. That accomplished, they will be all right.

The old livery horse was wise. He recognized the first symptoms of love-making and governed his gait accordingly.

Riding on a train has become about the safest thing a person can do these days. Out of 480,000,000 passengers carried by the country's railroads last year, there was only one fatality.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

Joan Hastings, seventeen, and beautiful, lives a secluded life with her two old maid aunts in a rambling house. She falls in love with Bill Martin, a garage worker. Meanwhile, the aunts plan to send Joan away to school. Bill tells the girl that he's very poor and it may be years before he can think of marrying, but she vows she will wait for him. Joan is overjoyed when news arrives that she is to go away to school.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII.

That night, with the door locked, and her heart beating painfully and hotly, she wrote her first love letter. But the words that slipped so naturally and warmly from her lips when Bill's tanned cheek was close to hers, looked strange and lonely on the white paper. "Oh I can't write it!" she whispered. "I can't."

The hands on the battered alarm clock pointed to nine. And she wanted to post it that night! So disengaging the pen and the few sheets of Christmas notepaper that were left, she grabbed her stubby lead pencil and school tablet, and wrote firmly and quickly in her round school-girl hand:

"Dear Bill,

Can you be on the hill, you know where, about four tomorrow afternoon? I am not going to school, I am going to the city with Aunt Evvie, but we will be back by then. Be sure to come, it is important. I must see you I have lots to tell you. Don't forget. I've just got to see you.

Your always loving Joan."

Gerwin brought it to him when he came back from lunch the next day. "Letter for you, Bill. Lady friend?"

Dolores, Gerwin's pretty wife, who had stopped in the garage to rest after her day's shopping, laughed loudly. "Let's see, I dare you. Come on—searched, eh? I know a woman. Why don't you tell us? You're the quiet one. Still waters—"

"Aw, it's nothing!" Bill jammed it into his pocket. "Guess I'll go on over to Murphy's and see about those tires."

In the shelter of Murphy's shed, half hidden by some empty barrels and a pile of old tires, he ripped the envelope open, read the hastily penciled words.

His heart sank. Something important had happened. It couldn't be anything good. The old ladies had found out, and warned her not to see him again most likely. Still it didn't sound very blue. It didn't sound just like Joan either—"Dear Bill"—somehow he expected something more than "Dear Bill." Oh well, he'd know at four o'clock. He got to work with a will.

Across the bay Joan was eating banana shortcake and hot chocolate with whipped cream, in a restaurant! It was a modest enough coffee house with thick china, and glass-topped tables always slightly damp and streaked from the waitresses' hastily administered wipings, but it was Joan's first, and Aunt Evvie had let her order anything she wanted, up to thirty-five cents.

She beamed across at stolid Evvie, consuming chicken pie and green tea, with evident relish. At their feet was a big paste-board box containing a sturdy tweed suit, two cotton blouses, and a little round straw hat with a ribbon bow. And on her feet—oh wonder of wonders—brown oxfords with high heels!

From the blissful whipped cream and high-heeled dream in which Aunt Evvie's unexpected generosity had submerged her, Joan came back to earth to hear the familiar bass voice saying:

"Joan, for heaven's sake, pay attention!" Evvie was getting sick of Joan's dreaming. "I said, isn't it too bad we didn't bring flowers from home!"

"What for?"

"What for? Joan Hastings, have you been asleep? To bring to the cemetery of course—"

"The cemetery—but it's in Oakland!"

"Of course—and we're on the Oakland boat."

"Not the Sausalito boat—we're not going home now—we're going to the cemetery instead of home?"

Oh—why didn't you tell me—why didn't you tell me?"

The tragic face Joan turned to her startled Evvie out of her habitual calm. A moment passed before she gathered herself together sufficiently to answer. "Well, I should certainly think you'd want to visit your own mother's grave on your last day! Especially when we didn't on Easter on account of Babe's cold!"

The first Easter I ever missed taking flowers out to Mama and Papa—"

And then as Joan continued to bruised and cut—her red mouth bleeding, her lovely eyes closed while he sat in the sun, and smoked and wondered why she didn't come—

"I couldn't stand it," he groaned, turning blindly away from the steel rails. "If anything happened to her—"

And then he saw her, standing with her arms full of bundles outside of the drugstore on the corner.

Bundles. She had been shopping. Delayed. That was all! Relief and anger surged over him in a great red wave. "Joan!" he said in a flat thin voice that echoed strangely in his own ears.

"Aunt Evvie kept me—I couldn't get back. I've been nearly crazy worrying that you'd think—that you'd think—"

They groped for each other's hands. He was conscious of her chalky face in the half light from the drugstore window, of the tremor in her voice, the tenseness of her slender body.

A trembling seized him. He gripped her cramped little hand holding the packages. "I worried about you—"

"Bill—dear!" Her heart was full. "Bill I want to tell you—"

But before she had time for another word Aunt Evvie was coming out of the store with Aunt Babe's mustard plaster, and Bill had stepped back into the shadows.

As she plodded up the hill by Evvie's side his last whispered words kept ringing in her ears—

"Tonight—I'll be at the hedge!"

There was dinner to be got over, and a long family confab over Joan's ticket and the gray tweed suit.

Babe thought they should have got an upper berth. "It's safer!"

"Safer! Nonsense—why is it safer?" Evvie was all ready for the argument.

"I've read stories about young girls traveling alone—" Babe began dully.

"Rats!" snorted Evvie. "Rats, I do everlastingly hate this drive of yours about men. Men. Did any man ever chase you? No! Nor me either. Nor any other woman that minds her own business, and dresses neat and plain. Now that suit I picked out for Joan—"

"It's neat and plain," Babe agreed beligerently. "And ugly. No pretty styles nowadays. When I was a girl . . . flounces . . . that shrimp pink silk mama had made for my sixteenth birthday . . . Valenciennes lace . . . ostrich tips . . ."

Joan wriggled nervously in her chair. Evvie picked up the paper and read the stock reports. In the middle of Babe's "Now let me see—" did we have the dressmaker for that, or was that one we bought in the city?" Evvie yawned, and went to bed. After a long time Babe's pauses grew longer. She nodded, roused herself, creaked upstairs too.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

It was dark when Bill came down from the hill. Joan's scribbled note, torn into a dozen pieces, had gone fluttering off on the wind.

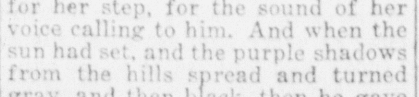

He swaggered a little as he walked. Swaggered, because he had to do something to ease the intolerable hurt. "She didn't come—she didn't come." That was as far as his thoughts would take him. All afternoon he had waited listening for her step, for the sound of her voice calling to him. And when the sun had set, and the purple shadows from the hills spread and turned gray, and then black, then he gave up.

He passed Gerwin's Garage. Closed. "Maybe I'll lose my job for this," he thought without much interest.

A boat had just come in from the city. Commuters were swarming into the waiting trains for Larkspur, and Manor and Sonora and Ross. . . . Clang of bells, grinding of brakes . . . rumble of steel wheels. . . .

Gosh! . . . suppose there had been an accident? Joan hurt! Run down by a passing street car—she wasn't used to the traffic of the city! Joan—her white flesh

Bill's heart sank when he read Joan's note.

Bill's heart sank when he read Joan's note.

"Uncle Bob" Tells Tots Of His Circus Days

with the Orin Rose Circus, and for 22 years with Barnum and Bailey.

The tots piled the circus-man with questions, and many a laugh was gained from his quick and witty answers. He imitated circus-act announcers, and told of how he used to do a double-somersault over six horses, two elephants and two camels.

To the boy and girl in each school room who draw the best picture of "Uncle Bob," with his photograph as a guide, will he give a prize.

"Uncle Bob" asked that a "Klown Kiddy Klub" be organized, and all rose to repeat the motto, "A clown must laugh, but never lie nor cry." To each child who signs up with the Klub the beloved Mr. Sherwood promised to send an autographed picture of himself.

After his appearance at the high school "Uncle Bob" spoke at Wood street school, where to first and second grade tots he distributed balloons.

Find Car Driver Guilty, Two Counts; Put On Probation financially in 1931 and had no money in which to make her tax returns and for that reason did not file a report, because the law states that the report shall accompany a check for tax money.

The defendant testified that she paid some of the tax money out of her own personal Christmas club fund and that she never tried to defraud the State. She notified the State, she said, that her business is now handled by an assignee.

Sylvester Moninghoff, who worked for Mrs. Kiefer for ten years, testified that the defendant's reputation for honesty is excellent, and Judge Keller added that he knew the defendant.

Attorney Grim, in appealing for leniency for his client, declared there was a lot of vindictiveness on the part of the Department of Revenue in handling this case, and that there is no reason for making an example out of Mrs. Kiefer. Mr. Grim pointed out that just recently the State Department refused to accept a check in full payment of the claim.

"Well, this is an example of some other legislation passed at Harrisburg," Judge Keller declared. "Now they have changed the law and tax is collectable in another manner. This is another illustration of the difficulties of the former gas tax law brought forth.

"The Court will adjudge you guilty of the charge of failing to file a report, but you have been the unfortunate victim of circumstances. You did the best thing by having an assignee appointed."

Judge Keller suspended sentence on condition that Mrs. Kiefer pay the costs within six months.

John H. Baldwin, of Oxford Valley, pleaded guilty this morning to a charge of larceny of 12 gallons of gasoline from a tank at South Langhorne, operated by the Vacuum Oil Company.

Corporal Evans, of the State Highway Patrol, testified that Baldwin told him that he stole the gasoline for his own use.

Baldwin testified that he is married and has a mother, a wife and four children to support, and that he has been in jail since his arrest, although he has a job in Philadelphia.

Judge Keller placed Baldwin on probation for a year and suspended prison sentence, saying to Baldwin that he hoped that he still had his job when he gets back home.

I request the co-operation of our citizens in aiding the Veterans of the Civil War, the Spanish-American War and the great World War, so that they may, in a proper program, fittingly honor the memory of their deceased comrades and our honored dead.

CLIFFORD L. ANDERSON,

"TAKE MY TIP"

Homey is the word for "Take My Tip." It is the sort of play in which we recognize the follies of our neighbors and incidentally our own if we look close enough. Few of us have escaped getting our finger a burnt in the stock market, and we will take a sympathetic and amused interest in the doings of Henry Merrill, played by Ralph Palermo, when he tries to buck the game and grow rich. St. Ann's Guild Players have selected this timely, hilarious comedy for production at St. Ann's auditorium on June 11th and 12th.

FALLSINGTON NINE DEFEATS BRISTOL HIGH

By Oscar Corn
(High School Press Representative)
In an exceedingly close game, in which it was either team's game until the last man got out, the Bristol High nine was handed a close 3 to 2 defeat, by the Black and Orange Fallsington High team. The game was played on the Falls Township field, yesterday afternoon.

The winning of this game placed Fallsington tie with Bristol for the Lower Bucks County, Division A, League honors. There will be a play-off game on Wednesday, May 31st, at either Morrisville or George School. The winner of the play-off game will play a "little world series" with the winner of Division B of the Lower Bucks County League.

From beginning to end, this game was a thriller, with first Fallsington taking the lead, then Bristol; finally in the fifth inning Falls Township pushed across a run which gave them the one-run lead which won the game. Both pitchers did fine work on the mound, holding down their opponents to five hits. Incidentally the losing of this game spoils the most remarkable record of any high school pitcher in this vicinity. Up to yesterday, Peter Firce, of Bristol high school, had the record of never having lost a game during his four years of high school baseball. His string of about thirty wins was finally broken by Fallsington.

An error, a hit and a long sacrifice fly gave Falls Township their score in the first. In the third canto two hits scored the Black and Orange's second run, when Reading and Laughlin doubled. Two more hits, a double and a triple, scored their final run in the fifth.

Bristol's initial run was scored when Manzo doubled and Berry came through with a nice single. In the third inning "Vic" Rockhill as the first man up, with three and two on him, slashed out a home run.

NEWPORT MEN'S CLUB VICTORS OVER W. BRISTOL

BRISTOL SUBURBAN LEAGUE
Last Night's Results

CUBANS, 3; WHITE ELEPHANTS, 3
NEWPORT, 3; WEST BRISTOL, 2
FURMANS, 9; FERGUSONVILLE, 7

The Newport Road Men's Club captured its third straight victory of the Bristol Suburban League last night, defeating West Bristol A. A., 3-2, on the West Bristol field.

The West Bristol team rallied in the sixth but were cut short when "Tommy" Kenny made a beautiful running catch of Corrigan's short fly behind second base.

Gerhart's home run failed to help Fergusonville on the Pine street diamond as the Furmans were in a hitting mood and beat the "Fergies," 9-7. Gerhart had two singles besides his home run.

Five runs in the fifth frame clinched the game for the Bristol Club, who were out-hit, ten to seven.
The Cubans and White Elephants battled to a 3-3 deadlock on King's diamond.

The fray was a pitching duel between "Eddie" Hovatter and "Johnny" Bragg. Bragg fanned eight batters and did not issue a pass, while Hovatter walked three but fanned nine to have a slight edge. Bragg was found for seven hits, while the best the Cubans could do with the Elephants' hurler was five.

The Elephants' fielding helped them considerably. Two double-plays stopped threatening rallies by the colored team.

SPECTATORS AID "SAINTS" TO WIN OVER "INDIES"

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE
Schedule for tonight
EDGELY vs. DAMP WASH
(St. Ann's field)

The spectators helped the St. Ann's A. A. to score a close 3-2 victory over the Independents last night on St. Ann's field.

The incident happened in the last inning with the winning run on third base. Fields was at bat and being one of the most dangerous hitters in the league, Captain Tranotti of the losers, made the signal to Manager Rubino to pass the St. Ann's outfielder. Rubino tried to attract the attention of his hurler or catcher by yelling at them but the cheering of the spectators drowned his voice and Antonelli grooved a pitch which Fields hit to short to score the winning run of the game.

The victory places the St. Ann's team in a deadlock with the Jefferson A. C. The losers outthrew the winners, seven to two. Both of St. Ann's hits were made by their star receiver, Tony Angelo. He also tossed out two would-be base-stealers at important moments of the game.

Is This Stanford's Year?

By BURNLEY

"DINK" TEMPLETON IS
POINTING HIS STANFORD TRACK
TEAM FOR THE I.C.-4A. CROWN--

CAN
U.S.C.

JUST a year ago at this time Dink Templeton, Stanford's fiery track coach, was lying in a hospital cot fighting off a near-fatal attack of arthritis. Those were dark hours for Templeton. Desperately ill, he suffered the added vexation of his track team's third straight defeat at the hands of their Southern California rivals in the I. C. 4-A. classic while his big ace, Eastman, was trounced by a then unknown easterner, Bill Carr.

This is another year, however, and Stanford's erstwhile "boy coach" is back in good health again, with excellent prospects of gaining revenge upon the champion Trojans in the intercollegiate track championships at Harvard stadium today and tomorrow.

Dink's boys carried off the I. C. A. A. A. laurels in 1927, 1928 and 1929, but since that time have been eclipsed by Dean Cromwell's galaxy of Southern California track stars. Now it looks as if the cycle of Trojan supremacy has run its course, and the Red sun of Stanford seems due to rise once again to its former ascendancy.

Cromwell has already conceded defeat, predicting that the Indian trackmen will roll up a margin of at least 20 points over his Trojans. These pessimistic statements on Cromwell's part must be taken with several grains of salt, of course. Like football coaches, the track mentors are not averse to pulling the psychology stuff, and going into the meet as the underdogs will undoubtedly stimulate the champion Trojans to a supreme effort against the powerful Cards.

The Red Menace from Northern California looms ominously, just the same. Look over a few of the Stanford aces. First there's the super-star, Big Ben Eastman, world's record holder in the half mile and one of the most remarkable runners of all time. The Blond Blazer pulled a tendon this spring, which is expected to prevent him from flashing his greatest speed for some time, but this marvelous star is good enough to beat any of his rivals in spite of such a handicap. Then there is the Olympic pole vault champion, Bill Miller, who will battle it out in the high, low, and event with the Trojans' world record holder, Bill Graber, with such stars as Deacon of Stanford, Brown of Yale, Thompson of Yale and others also in the running for the vaulting title.

The Cards' ace sprinter, Abe Hables—"Hard Luck Abe"—has done 9.7 seconds for the century and 21.6 for the 220 so far this season; and these marks should certainly win for him against the more or less mediocre crop of dash men who will compete in the classic which starts today.

In the weight events, Stanford boasts such aces as Dunn, Lyman and Laborde in the shotput, all of whom have exceeded 50 feet this year; and Laborde in the discus and Mottram in the javelin events will be strong contenders. All in all, prospects look very bright for Templeton's Stanford outfit this week end; and if the Indians do triumph, not even the most rabid Trojan rooter should begrudge them their victory. For Templeton certainly deserves a break after all the tough luck he had in 1932.

They might have called it: "MURDER ON THE MOUNTAINSIDE"

IN THE Allegheny Mountains, last August, cars and gasolines were "taken for a ride" such as they had never known before. One after another they were lashed up the mountainside . . . pistons pumping furiously, tires creaking at every curve, bolts and bodies straining almost to the breaking-point. Here was a test of tests . . . a mighty experiment on the part of the Nation's leading automobile and refining companies to find ways to bring you better engines and better fuels. ATLANTIC participated. For months since then, it has been carrying on the work. And it has succeeded in producing a NEW WHITE FLASH.

HILLS MELT AWAY BEFORE IT

YOU can't pour the NEW ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH onto the top of a mountain and have that mountain literally melt away, like ice cream under an August sun.

But you can pour it into the tank of your automobile and enjoy much the same effect, as far as driving is concerned. For this great new fuel is, we sincerely believe, more powerful than any product ever offered, at or near its price.

It is crystal clear. Contains no gum. Has no unpleasant odor. Brings you greater value than ever. The sooner you try it, the quicker you'll agree with your friends: "THE NEW WHITE FLASH is POWERFULLY BETTER."
